Programme

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT WORKSHOPS

To bolster the international learning and experience gained during various programme activities, we hold a range of Personal Development & Cultural Workshops to strengthen the global competence - the global-ready Attitudes, Knowledge, Skills, and Experiences - of each participant through hands-on opportunities such as a drumming workshop, learning business through a sports simulation and a Singaporean food culture & dining etiquette workshop.

EXTRACURRICULAR EXCURSIONS

Outside the classroom, participants will embark on various Academic and Extracurricular Excursions. These excursions will fill up weekday evenings after daily classes and project sessions, and will include themed visits to show the development of Singapore, and industry visits to regional juggernauts.

LOCAL STUDENT "BUDDY" GUIDE

Participants will also be paired with a Local Student "Buddy" Guide, who will not only accompany them to academic and cultural events during the week, but also bring them to various highlights of the Singaporean society each weekend in order to experience the true Singapore through the eyes of a local.

Why is ISP@SIM Awesome?

At ISP@SIM, we grow together to conquer the world of opportunities out there! Right here in the sunny island of Singapore, have fun meeting and learning with local buddies and new pals from around the globe. Discover so much more about yourself and interacting successfully with diverse cultures and perspectives around you. Pick up skills to navigate the digital world and improve your personal effectiveness in your professional and personal lives. Increase confidence in your strengths and develop strategies to continue to improve yourself beyond this summer of a lifetime. At ISP@SIM, we believe in that global learning starts with you, and we're in this together!

Orientation & Introduction of Buddies from the SIM Global Learning Society

Meet your newest buddies, friendly SIM student volunteers, for this Singapore adventure! Develop your impromptu speaking skills and confidence as you introduce yourself to the awesome team behind ISP@SIM and your SIM buddies. Get to know a little about the culture of Singapore and the dos and don'ts of being around SIM. With some general housekeeping directions, you'll be all ready to explore Singapore, and get to know yourself and your buddies better!

Industry Interface Projects

What is better than just learning in and out of the classroom? Prove your business acumen as an individual and as a team through the Industry Interface Projects! Develop business strategies and recommendations with the support of a project advisor. Be heard and given feedback by senior management of companies and organizations sponsoring these stimulating projects. You have learnt so much through ISP@SIM, and this is your chance to demonstrate it and develop your portfolio!

Marina Bay Sands

As you warm up to your buddies, what's better than having a relaxing afternoon out together? Gaze upon the amazing panorama of Singapore's internationally renowned skyline and the beautiful Marina Barrage, Singapore's first reservoir in the heart of the city. Put aside whatever is on your mind and celebrate this very moment at 57 floors above with the ISP@SIM crew! Take magnificent selfies and #squadgoals photos in Ce La Vi, featured in the movie, "Crazy Rich Asians." Yes, we will be chilling out together in one of Asia's most celebrated skybars, also conveniently located right next to the world-famous infinity pool. You can be sure that your friends will wish they they were here in Singapore with you right now!

Why is ISP@SIM Awesome?

Choose Your Own Adventure: Singapore!

Do you have a list of “must do” in Singapore? Are you all set on hunting down specific food and the legendary “king of fruits”, the durian? Want to take classic and funny photos with the different Merlions in Singapore? Fear not! Your local buddies have your back. As a team, create your Singapore adventure, and achieve it together by the time you embark from Changi Airport with so many new memories! (WARNING: You may have so much fun with your buddies that you may leave Singapore crying from already starting to miss them, like so many ISP@SIM participants before you!)

Company Visits

Develop your business insights as you understand Singapore’s compelling proposition as a regional and international hub for business. As the second-ranked economy for doing business in the world, Singapore is a wonderful destination for students seeking to understand a leading case study for international business and management. Interact and network with staff as you learn more about how the business environment is great for companies and individuals seeking international working environments.

Global Business Speaks English – Networking Dinner

Grow your international network! An exclusive opportunity for programme participants, this networking dinner is a night to be remembered. Get this chance to meet and learn from others who have been successful in working and living in Singapore. Ask all the questions you may have in your mind about living abroad, how to find jobs overseas... even possibly on coping with the demands of long-distance family relations!

Global Communication Through Drums

Do... you... feel... the... beat...? You’re all set to experience an exhilarating team building session through drumming! Be wowed by what it takes to be in perfect harmony beating to the rhythm of leadership and teamwork. Appreciate turn-taking, the gift of silence in appropriate intervals, and exercise your creativity to drum up a new jam of memories together!

Why is ISP@SIM Awesome?

Sports Simulation – When Sports Meets Business

So you think you can win? What about winning and managing as a team? Be ready to conquer your preconceptions of what it takes to win as a team, of sportsmanship and friendly competition! Whether you enjoy the adrenaline when scoring for the team, or prefer to analyse the performance of various players and determine the recruitment preferences, or conduct media and commentary coverage, there is a role for everyone. Bring your game on!

Weekend with SIM Global Learning Society (GLS)

There certainly are so many avenues to discover yourself through this programme planned out just for you, but it just gets better. Remember, your local buddies got your back? Discover more of Singapore together apart from “Choose Your Own Adventure”, as you get to choose and participate in exciting weekend plans together with the GLS! Experience Singapore as young adults having fun on a weekend. Now, what are you waiting for?

Singapore Food Culture & Dining Etiquette

Do you know that it is good manners to eat with your hands for some cuisines in Singapore? Not to worry about being awkward, let us show you how to be polite in Singapore when enjoying different cuisines! Let your mouth water with the eye-opening variety of food in Singapore. Learn about culture and dining etiquette as you train your soft skills in being an internationally-ready global citizen, right in Singapore, where the world meets.

Graduation Ceremony

They say, all good things must come to an end, but why let it just end on a dull note? Nominate your class representatives to give that old school graduation speech on behalf of the graduating class! Dress for that moment and pose for the camera with that brilliant smile of yours – you have graduated! Exchange last messages, sign off on each other’s sports simulation team shirts and take more photographs and videos than needed. Keep these memories close to your heart, and let the world know how much you loved ISP@SIM on social media! A surprise performance awaits you too!

Global Learning Developmental Framework

GLOBAL COMPETENCE

Global Competence enables an individual to succeed in a global context through adaptability, open-mindedness and intercultural competence while increasing awareness and respect towards others, the environment and oneself, your soft skills in being an internationally-ready global citizen, right in Singapore, where the world meets.

■ Global Awareness

This dimension measures your consciousness of the world as a whole. It also addresses your conceptual understanding, or applicable knowledge, of global and cultural customs and perspectives (Adapted from Hunter, 2008; DKG, 2011: p. 102).

■ Adaptability

This dimension measures your ability to quickly grasp change and adjust behaviors to optimize individual and team outcomes, demonstrating flexibility as circumstances or the environment varies.

■ Intercultural Competence

This dimension measures your ability to interact effectively and appropriately in intercultural situations, based on attitudes and behaviors, intercultural knowledge, skills and depth of situational or cultural reflection (Adapted from Deardorff, 2004: p. 144).

■ Global Knowledge

This dimension measures your general knowledge of the world that includes both book and real-world knowledge. Subject areas include but are not limited to: culture, politics, economics, geography, history, religion, science and sports.

■ Responsibility

This dimension measures the extent to which you seek to understand the situations and needs of those near and far, and strive to contribute to something outside of your or your own surroundings.

CREATIVE INTELLIGENCE

This dimension measures your ability to embrace ambiguity and complexity, through navigating the unknown and engaging with the status quo to come up with novel problem-solving approaches.

■ Futuristic Thinking

This dimension measures your ability to anticipate future trends accurately by extrapolating existing trends and facts, and filling the gaps by innovative thinking (Adapted from ACCA, 2016).

■ Improvisation

This dimension measures your ability to understand new or unplanned changes and create and implement a new or an unplanned solution, through being highly focused and present in the moment to pick cues out, working with the known parameters to react and adapt very quickly to achieve the most strategic outcome (Adapted from MIT, 2010, 2016).

■ Inquisitiveness

This dimension measures your pursuit of understanding ideas, values, norms, and behaviors that are different to what you are used to. Similar to curiosity, it also addresses your capacity and tendency to take advantage of learning opportunities (Adapted from Bird, 2008: p. 74).

■ Think Outside the Box

This dimension measures your ability to go beyond the frames of thought defined explicitly or implicitly by the given situation or social convention, to explore new frontiers of possibilities.

■ Solution Focus

This dimension measures your future-focused, goal-directed and strengths-based approach to deploying different perspectives to evaluate specific situations, with an emphasis on resilience and identifying resources which can be utilized to pursue goals and enact purposeful positive change (Adapted from Trepper, Dolan, McCollum, & Nelson, 2006; Proudlock & Wellman, 2011; Lam & Yuen, 2008; Corcoran & Pillai, 2007; Grant, 2011; 2012).

SOCIAL INTELLIGENCE

This dimension measures your ability to master interpersonal relationships and establish rapport, through experience with people and learning from diverse scenarios and social settings (Adapted from Riggio, 2014).

■ Active Listening

This dimension measures your ability to fully concentrate with all senses on what is being communicated verbally and non-verbally, through a mindful process of receiving information from the individual or group attempting to converse, attempting to understand, echo, respond and remember the information conveyed.

■ Communication Skills

This dimension measures your ability to convey or share ideas and feelings effectively and efficiently.

■ Impromptu Speaking

This dimension measures your ability to deliver a speech of usually five to eight minutes, with a characteristically short preparation time or none at all.

■ Leadership

This dimension measures your ability to lead a group of people or organization.

■ Open-Mindedness

This dimension measures your unprejudiced approach to people from other cultures. It means being critically receptive to alternative possibilities, being willing to think again despite having formed an opinion, and sincerely trying to avoid those conditions and offset those factors which constrain and distort our reflections (Adapted from Hare, 2006).

■ Respectfulness

This dimension measures your ability to be flexible with and respectful of cultural differences to the point that you are able to truly understand them, even though you may disagree, and be able to overcome your own prejudice in order to communicate effectively and smoothly. It also addresses how you value social harmony and cooperation.

■ Teamwork

This dimension measures your ability to work with and within a group of people, utilizing skill sets such as cooperation, identifying and contributing individual skills to the team endeavor, providing constructive feedback and engaging in dialogue, overcoming any personal conflict between individuals.

EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE

This dimension measures your ability to be aware of, control, and express one's emotions through intrapersonal mastery, and to be similarly aware of expressed emotions and introspection of others.

■ Critical Thinking

This dimension measures your ability to perform objective analysis, assessment, reconstruction and evaluation of an issue to form a judgment, no matter how familiar one might be with any subject, content, or problem. This dimension includes the ability to differentiate fact from opinion, as well as to identify provenance, points of view, bias and subjectivity in information sources.

■ Decision-Making

This dimension measures your goal-directed ability to evaluate the array of options available in a situation, considering the nuanced impact of different choices on present and future scenarios, bearing in mind and prioritizing given constraints and or parameters, and embarking on the course of action which is strategic and purposeful to the goals to be achieved, optimizing outcomes for intended individual(s) and group(s) of people.

■ Emotional Empathy

This dimension measures your ability to share the same sensations and feelings of another person, which enables an individual to build emotional connections with others (Adapted from Bariso, 2018).

■ Rational Empathy

This dimension measures your ability to perceive and understand the emotions of another accurately, through developing more holistic and accurate knowledge about the contents of another person's mind, including identifying how the person feels (Adapted from Hodges and Myers, 2007).

■ Self-Awareness

This dimension measures your ability to maintain personal beliefs and values regardless of the situation. Having strong self-awareness involves being aware of one's own values, beliefs and perspectives, and being able to maintain one's personal integrity while being open to cultural differences without feeling threatened. This person is aware of personal strengths and weaknesses, while having a keen understanding of his/her own culture, history and social norms (Adapted from Bird, 2008: p. 75).

DIGITAL INTELLIGENCE

This dimension measures your ability to navigate the digital world through establishing digital identities of individuals (including yourself), groups and entities and objectively evaluate digital information and media sources. Through mastery of key digital competencies, an individual is enabled by this dimension to confidently engage in productive use, creation and management of technology to achieve and improve individual and societal dignity, prosperity, and well-being (Adapted from DQ Institute, 2018).

■ Digital Communication

This dimension measures your ability to communicate across digital and media mediums, to effectively and efficiently juggle digital communication venues, reaching and delivering information and intended messages to targeted audiences across communication channels and platforms. This includes being able to achieve traditional communication aspects, such as customer orientation, timely interaction and touchpoints, improving follow-up and multi-stakeholder perceptions and engagement, through digital means, increasing the achievement of the aims of communication (Adapted from Rush, 2018).

■ Digital Entrepreneurship

This dimension measures your ability to embrace new ventures and the transformation of existing business by creating and using novel digital technologies, with a strong focus on business operations improvement, invention of new business models, sharpening business intelligence, and multi-stakeholder engagement through digital channels (Adapted from European Commission, 2014).

■ Media Literacy

This dimension measures your ability to access, analyze, evaluate, create and act upon messages across variety of forms, which may range from traditional mediums to new media formats which emerge with new technologies and communications channels. This dimension enables identification, critical understanding and engagement with the interdisciplinary decoding and validity of messages, understanding the role of media in society, through a process of inquiry and self-expression in this increasingly dynamic and complex electronic and physical global environment (Adapted from NAMLE, 2015; Donohue & Kelly, 2016).

■ Online Research Skills

This dimension measures your ability to create, critically evaluate and refine research questions and hypotheses, organize research methods, and use social networks and information tools to gather and share information on the Internet in an agile and iterative process, while respecting the intellectual property rights of creators and producers. This dimension requires emotional resilience, advanced media literacy skills, digital communication, global competence and creative intelligence skill clusters to be able to contextualize search queries, evaluate information and information sources, to optimize the process of answering the research question (Adapted from Hudson, 2019; Dochartaigh, 2012).

It was 2016 when a cohort of my new students first participated in a summer programme at SIM. Participating in the programme for three summers in a row, I can now attest with more confidence that this is one of the greatest destinations for short-term study abroad programmes. My students really like the learning experience of lectures and activities on global competence. Many of them have shared with me that they never had lectures like this in Japan. For many Japanese college students, global competence is something they have “heard” but rarely “learned” in school. Therefore, it was indeed an eye-opening learning experience for them. One of my educational beliefs is that even short-term learning experience can broaden students’ worldview when it stimulates their interest in a meaningful way. The International Summer Programme at SIM provides exactly such a learning experience.

If you have the desire to learn and expand your knowledge of self, and other cultures, enhance your global competence, and meet lifelong friends, make plans to spend your time at SIM.

The programme really helped me in many aspects, especially in understanding global competence and preparing ourselves for the global workplace. I learned that before I enter this programme, I really lack motivation especially in my studies of my major. This programme made me realised that motivation is an essential part in order to be successful and be able to achieve your goal.

From the courses and events to the SIM buddies...everything about the programme was amazing! I had no idea that you can develop such deep connections with people over such a short period of time. Some of us cried at the airport during send off. I did not expect that. This programme has completed my education.
